

A Prayer

Lord, make me an instrument of your peace.
Where there is hatred, let me sow love;
where there is injury, pardon;
where there is doubt, faith;
where there is despair, hope;
where there is darkness, light;
and where there is sadness, joy.

O Divine Master, grant that I may not so much seek
to be consoled as to console;
to be understood as to understand;
to be loved as to love.
For it is in giving that we receive;
it is in pardoning that we are pardoned;
and it is in dying that we are born to eternal life.
Amen.

The Companions

Of The Society Of St. Francis

Who, What are the Companions
of the Society of St. Francis

The Society of St. Francis is a religious community of men and women whose rule of life is based on that of St Francis of Assisi, who lived a life of absolute poverty, in love with Jesus Christ the incarnate Son of God in the service of all creation.

A Companion is one who accompanies: The companions of the Society of St. Francis are those who, in the course of their Christian journey have met or heard of the Sisters and Brothers , and have a desire to accompany them in the way of Christian commitment. While they do not wish, or are not in a position to live a life in community, companions wish to support those who have been called to this way of life.

A Companion is one who prays: The companions of the Society of St. Francis are encouraged to deepen their spiritual life through prayer. Prayer is the chief means by which they journey together with the Sisters and Brothers, for it is out of their regular prayer that the society gains much strength. To assist them in their prayer for the Society throughout the world, companions are encouraged to subscribe to the Society’s publication “Franciscan,” published three times a year. This magazine contains lively and interesting articles on a wide variety of subjects. It also gives news of Sisters and Brothers throughout the world, and includes intercession lists of members and some of their engagements. Companions have their own publication which is produced by them and comes free twice a year.

A Companion is one who serves: The companions are encouraged in active service of those in need and some feel drawn to help or support a project or particular ministry of one of the Society’s houses. This help is gratefully accepted. In some areas Companions meet together for fellowship, prayer and mutual support. Meetings are not obligatory but are valuable in the exchange of ideas and thoughts of those following the same commitment and service.

A Companion is one who seeks: The companions are encouraged to read and study the scriptures and to strengthen their spiritual life. The four obligations set out in this leaflet are meant to assist them.They are also encouraged to visit the Sisters and Brothers who have a number of houses throughout the U.K. Some of these houses have guest accommodation where people may stay, either singly, or as a group, for rest and relaxation, or a retreat, for meeting or to study or just to get to know members of the Society. Some of the houses have special events or open days which companions are always welcome to attend.

How to become a Companion:
If when you have read this leaflet and prayed about it, you decide that you would like to become a Companion then:
